Summary: A simple Toothcup poem from Toothless's point of view, telling his rider just how much he means to him. Yaoi! Don't like don't read!

Until the day I die

I will love you until the day I die,

I want you to know that,

Because you are a beautiful creature,

And I would forever be lost without your love.

I will love you until the day I die,

I know it sounds cheesy,

But it's true,

No second of my life is worth living if you aren't there to share it with me.

I will love you until the day I die,

Everything about you,

From your soft auburn hair to your small little toes,

I wouldn't change an inch of you.

I will love you until the day I die,

You're amazing,

Truely brilliant,
Astounding in so many more ways than one.
I will love you until the day I die,
Cause one day you will be gone,
But I'll still be here,
I'll live many years past you.
I will love you until the day I die,
I will always belong to you,
No one else,
I am your dragon after all.
I will love you until the day I die,
Because no matter what,
You're my rider,
And you will be for eternity.
I will love you until the day I die,
And even after that,
There is no love as strong as the one we share now,
And there never will be such a love as great as ours.
I will love you until the day I die,
Every year,
Month,
Week,
Day,
Hour,
Minute,
Second,
For the rest of my life.
I will love you until the day I die,
And nothing I'm all the universe could ever stop that.
